In the agenda of the team some clarification and preparation for their important mission which is to observe the presidential election in Chad, some points have been outlined: Firstly, a plan action was brought out to enable the team to carry out its mission successfully during this presidential election, for this, the volunteers have been equipped according to the electoral map, rules with their materials such as waistcoats, badges and briefings on their missions, and some observers volunteers have been sent immediately in the mission to monitoring the first voting of Chadians militaries in their camps.

In addition, some remarks and suggestions were made concerning the means made available to them.

Thus, given the large number of polling stations, the action plan was very meticulously drafted by the IHRC Head of Monitoring Mission. Due to the many dangers to be faced by IHRC observers, the Government of the Republic of Chad assured them of their safety and readiness to cooperate fully.

"However, the volunteer observers are determined and committed to carry out their task on behalf of the International Human Rights Commission which they have volunteered.

the volunteers team are happy to have the privileges to join IHRC and through this channel they are serving their nations and humanity in General.

The meeting started at 8am and ended at 11:30am.

Election Observation:

IHRC to Observe Presidential Election in Chad

Towards the 2021 Presidential Election in Chad, the Special Monitoring Mission of the International Human Rights Commission has expressed readiness for international electoral observation in the Country of Chad.

It is a truism that any election can be enhanced by observation, but comprehensive observation is particularly helpful in countries in which a significant proportion of the population may lack trust in the electoral system.

The emergence of the International Human Rights Commission in observing the presidential election is an appraisal of the research that opines that international election observation can assess whether an election is in line with international standards, highlight specific recommendations for improvement, and demonstrate the support of the international community for genuine democratic elections.

As a Specialized and non-political Organization, the National Volunteers Coordinator in Chad, Mr. Kemga Médard Ousmane has identified the context to mobilize IHRC Volunteers to observe in the election.

The responsibility of the Volunteer Observers is hinged to: engage the international community in the election process; deter fraud; expose problems and irregularities; provide an accurate measure of the quality of the election; promote confidence in the process and outcomes, and provide recommendations for improving the process for the next election.

The team of IHRC Volunteers which held a meeting at El-Elion High School on the 10th April 2021 further highlighted their importance in observing the presidential election and made a strategic work plan for routine monitoring.

Adding, the Government of Chad has eulogized the International Human Rights Commission for their prompt response and the credible role they stand to play in ensuring electoral integrity. To this end, Chad's Government had assured their safety and readiness to cooperate fully.

The meeting started at 8am and ended at 11:30am.
