HISTORY

 1654 - The origins of the Bologna estate

The Bologna distillery takes its name from the owners of the sugar factory in the 17th and 18th centuries. The Bologna, Protestants from Dauphiné, migrated to Holland during the religious wars that shook France in the 16th century. From 1580, the Bolognas settled in Brazil, then a Dutch colony, to cultivate sugar cane there... In 1640, Portugal declared and won the war against the Netherlands: Brazil then passed under the Portuguese flag. Driven out, the Dutch from Brazil embark on ships bound for the West Indies. This is how the Bolognes landed in Guadeloupe in 1654, after being dislodged from Martinique because they were Protestants. They then decided to establish a sugar activity on the fertile slopes of Soufrière. This is how for more than 3 centuries, the sugar plantation of Bologna has been shaped by men...

 1830 Jean-Antoine AMÉ-NOËL, first large landed man of color in Guadeloupe

The plantation-sugar mill in Bologna, the name then given to the sugar cane plantations, experienced ups and downs over the centuries, like all the sugar mills of the time, linked to the vicissitudes of history and the revolution. French in particular. We will remember the date of May 26, 1830 when Jean-Antoine AMÉ-NOËL, acquires it. Originally from Bouillante in Basse-Terre (Guadeloupe), a young adventurous fisherman and also probably a Corsair, he was the first man of color "free from birth" to become the owner of an area as extensive (114 hectares) as Bologna was then. . His tomb is located in the gardens of Bologna.

 2010

One of the fundamental characteristics of Bologna rums is their remarkable ability to age. Perpetual challenge to time, it ages expressing this terroir effect which makes it more and more complex and subtle. The management of the estate is fully in line with the ability of the terroir to produce great old rums for laying down over the years. The objective is to pass on the richness of their diversity as a legacy to future generations. The rums are aged in French oak barrels for at least 3 years and up to more than ten years...

 2015 - The Black Cane Revolution

Since 2014 the Bologna distillery has undergone a major revival. The first of these is a very significant expansion of the offer and the launch of numerous innovations including the Black Cane. A 100% black cane limited edition, the Black Cane has expanded the premium range in accordance with the brand's historical positioning in the high-quality spirits segment. Many other product innovations are currently in development, which will see the light of day in 2016, leading to the release of nearly a dozen new products in 2 years! They are also emphasizing old rums, with the construction of an aging cellar, the complete restructuring of the Bologna cane plantations, as well as the continued modernization of the production tool.

 2020 - The first cuvée of organic agricultural rum from Guadeloupe

The Bologna distillery puts environmental issues at the heart of its production. In order to go further, a plot was selected to begin an organic labeling process, initiated on November 8, 2017. This process endorses a long-term vision for the operation of the agricultural estate: a real commitment for the company. This is how in the last quarter of 2020, the first cuvée of organic agricultural rum from Guadeloupe appeared on the market. In the same vein, in 2021, the estate will obtain HVE (High Environmental Value) certification, at the highest level, level 3. A label that is built on several themes including the protection of biodiversity, the reduction of phytosanitary inputs and the management of water resources.
