MANUEL VALLS CALLS FOR ASYLUM FOR MIGRANT FLEEING CONFLICT COUNTRIES

Migrants' fleeing war, persecution, torture, oppression, must be welcomed "in France on Sunday estimated the French Prime Minister, Manuel Valls." "So every asylum application must be examined quickly," added the head of the socialist government in a speech to his party in La Rochelle. "Migrants should be treated with dignity, sheltered, cared for".

"Each asylum application must be examined quickly," said the French Prime Minister, Manuel Valls in concluding the Summer School of the PS. Manuel Valls said Sunday in La Rochelle that migrants "fleeing war, persecution, torture, oppression, must be welcomed" in France. "Each asylum application must be examined quickly," added the Prime Minister during his closing speech at the summer university of the Socialist Party. "Migrants should be treated with dignity, sheltered, cared for," he began.

"Our duty is to find sustainable solutions, based on values: humanity, responsibility, firmness," said the Prime Minister Manuel Valls quoted a phrase inscribed on the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty in New York: "Give me your poor, your exhausted which, in serried ranks, yearning to breathe free, the refuse of your teeming shore, send me these disinherited rejected by storm. From my light, I light the golden door. "

He called in contrast to the "hard" against illegal economic migration. Manuel Valls also make a trip to Calais Monday with Bernard Cazeneuve, Minister of the Interior, and two Commissioners.
